Dad admits to horrific hit-and-run

IN CUSTODY: Jan Adamec pleaded

JOSH THOMAS @JoshThomasCN

HAVERHILL father has pleaded guilty to a hit-and-run which left a footballer needing both his legs amputated from the knee down.

Jan Adamec, 40, of Shetland Road, admitted two counts of causing serious injury by dangerous driving when he appeared via video link from Pedford Prison at Combridge Bedford Prison at Cambridge Crown Court on Monday.

He wore a dark grey T-shirt and blue jeans and spoke only to confirm his name and enter his pleas.

He had pleaded not guilty to the two charges at an earlier hearing at Peterborough Mag-istrates' Court.

The chef will remain in custody until September 9 when he will be sentenced.

Judge Jonathan Haworth aid: "I'm worried that in a case as serious as this we can't proceed without a pre-sentence report."

He adjourned the sentencing for that report to be produced.

Adamec crashed his grey Ford Focus into Shaun Whiter and Joey Abbs' stationary vehicles on July 1 at 10.59pm on Dullingham Road near Newmarket.

The court heard that friends Mr Whiter and Mr Abbs had stopped to change a tyre on

Dream comes true for writer

TARA COX @TaraCoxCN

A KEDINGTON scriptwriter with a love for animation has fulfilled her lifetime dream of seeing her work on television.

Jen Upton, 39, who grew up in the village from the age of 9, said her latest series, Bottersnikes and Gumbles, has just started on CBBC daily at 6pm.

Bottersnikes and Gumbles is a CGI-animated series based on the much-loved classic children's books by Australian author S.A. Wakefield and illustrated by Desmond Digby.

She said: "There are 52 episodes of Bottersnikes and Gumbles and seeing it on TV for the first time last week was fantastic.

"To have a big credit at the start of the episode as head writer was really exciting.

"I've also had loads of messages from friends on Facebook saying their children have been watching the show and really love it.

"Feedback like that really makes me feel like all my hard work has come to something. "Working in animation has pretty much been a lifetime dream of mine

Ward Academy, leaving in 1994. She worked her way through an English and Theatre Production degree at Goldsmiths, University of London before working for a literary agency alongside the likes of Michael Bond, who wrote Paddinton Bear, and Raymond Briggs who wrote Fungus the Bogeyman. Jen said: "I was always interested in writing and fascinated with children's media and TV fiction.

"I later worked in TV production, working on shows such as Bob the Builder and Thomas the Tank Engine.

"My first CGI work was on Fireman Sam; I wrote a few episodes on that before also producing a series of Noddy."

Jen has also worked at Disney and last August was asked by the BBC to write a reboot of Dennis and Gnasher together with the editor-in -chief of Beano magazine.

Learn more about cuts to health

CUTS that could see services for vulnerable Haverhill adults scrapped are being discussed tomorrow,

Representatives from the West Suffolk and Ipswich and East Suffolk Clinical Commissioning Groups (CCGs) will be on Haverhill's market square tomorrow from 11am to 2pm. The event is part of a onsultation on proposals that would see the number of IVF cycles provided for couples reduced and services for marginalised and vulnerable adults focused on Ipswich.

This would mean a regular

This would mean a regular Wedsnesday clinic held in Haverhill for vulnerable and marginalised adults such as homeless people and refugees would be closed.

The changes would also mean that couples can only have either one cycle of IVF or no cycles at all unless they apply for funding – when they are currently allowed up to two cycles for women up to the age of 40.

To find out more about the proposals and give your feedback, visit the market square tomorrow or go to westsuffolkccg.nhs.uk and fill out the consultation form.

Family physio plea for Aiden

THE parents of a 6-year-old boy who has cerebral palsy are hoping to raise thousands of pounds for the physio he needs to walk independently.

Doctors told Vicky and Gareth Thomas, from Haverhill, their son Aiden would be a wheelchair user when he was diagnosed with the neurological condition just a few months into his life.

But when Aiden was two his parents raised £38,000 which enabled him to have life-changing surgery at the St Louis Children's Hospital in the American city of Missouri.

Now Aiden can walk independently at home and uses a frame or a cane when out and about.

But the family – who live in

But the family – who live in Arrendene Road – are spending up to £10,000 a year on the intensive physiotherapy Aiden needs to keep up his progress.

The money they raised when Aiden was two has completely run out and they have launched a fresh fundraising campaign so he can continue the regular sessions.

Vicky, a 37-year-old massage therapist, said: "We have been completely overwhelmed in all honesty by the generosity of the town and we know it's a big ask starting again."

But it is crucial that Aiden continues his physio while he is young, as it will enable him to live a full and active life when he is older.

He currently has a twohour block of physio every Saturday, and an intensive week of daily two-hour blocks every school holiday.

"Aiden is so much more confident," said Vicky. "He willingly joins in with activities if we go to a party or a sports club. We never would have dreamed that he would be able to go to sports clubs without me helping him."

Aiden attends New Cangle Primary School alongside his identical twin brother Owen, who does not have cerebral palsy. "Owen is fantastic with Aiden," said Vicky. "Aiden still needs a little bit of help getting dressed and Owen will help him get his trousers on. He comes to physio and sits and plays.

"We want them to grow up together."

As part of the family's fundraising Aiden's dad Gareth, a 31-year-old operations director for a window cleaning company, is taking on an Ironman Triathlon next year.

Aiden himself will be taking on an 100m walk without his frame or cane as part of an event run by disability charity Parallel London in September.

"It's something that he can do himself," said Vicky.

Prime Smart brings personal touch to bodywork repairs

A PRANG in the car park, a scrape against the side of your car or a parallel parking disaster that's scuffed up your lovely alloys.

We've all been there and every time you see that dent in your door you feel bereft all over again. But fear not. Help is at hand at bodywork repair shop Prime Smart which opened in April 2015 and has been going from strength to strength ever since.

Owner Sam King, who is local to the town having lived here all his life, has 15 years' experience in the repair business and since opening Prime Smart he has been overwhelmed by the response.

response.
"It has definitely been overwhelming – a lot busier than I was expecting!" he explains. "I feel my experience has taught me what people in this area expect in terms of service and value for money and I think a local independent company serves them better.

"With a national franchise you tend to lose the personal touch but, in a small town, that's something people appreciate."

The personal touch is what makes Prime Smart particularly unique and convenient to its customers, while the repair work itself is of the highest quality as all work is carried out in a professional workshop rather than out on their driveway.

And due to the techniques used in the workshop, Prime Smart can be up to 50 per cent cheaper than a traditional bodyshop.

"There's no need for a full spray booth or spray oven," explains Sam. "We minimise the repair area to as small as possible to keep the overheads down and additionally we don't charge any VAT."

Customers come to see Sam for a quote, or if that's not possible they have the option of sending photos or uploading them onto the website.

SUNSHINE: Families enjoy the theatre performance at East Town Park

Families flock to fun days out

THOUSANDS of families have attended fun days and a tribute night as Hayerhill's programme of summer events continues.

Around 900 people attended a fun day at the New Croft in Chalkstone Way yesterday, with 1,200 going to a day out in East Town Park the previous Wednesday.

At the New Croft, children were treated to inflatable slides, bungee trampolines and a climbing wall. They also had a chance to watch circus displays and try learning cir-

Haverhill Town Council's arts and leisure manager Nick Keeble said: "It's really cool that they are away from technology and doing something active."

The New Croft day was organised in conjunction with the Haverhill Community Sports Association, which provided refreshments.

The East Town Park Fun Day featured a host of workshops as well as a performance of a play for children.

Mr Keeble said: "We had a good reaction to the mix of things. It's a mini festival vibe there were drumming workshops and art workshops going on, not just jumping up and down. We even had bubble workHANNAH MIRSKY

He said that there was a positive response to Blunderbus Theatre's performance of Dotty the Dragon. Families took picnics and ate together on the grass.

On Saturday evening, thousands of residents flocked to Haverhill's market square for a tribute night which featured homages to ABBA and Motown.

"That was amazing – we have had a fantastic reaction," said Mr Keeble. "Lots of people have said it was one of the best ones ever.'

Still to come as part of Haverhill Town Council's programme of summer events are a fun day at and around the Leiston Centre on Wednesday, and another tribute night on Saturday, August 20.

Mr Keeble advised walking to the healthy eating-themed Leiston Centre fun day as there is limited parking.

He continued: "It's going really well and many thousands of happy faces is what we are seeing.

Two reasons for obesity

THERE are generally just two reasons why people are obese – too much food and not enough exercise.

All the sports centres and gyms won't make the slightest difference if people don't accept they simply eat too much and their choices on food and drink are the wrong ones.

I see young and old people - not just in Haverhill - all over the UK that are, to put is quite simply, FAT.

They just don't seem to accept they are losing valuable years of life and that they are probably facing a long painful death.

Stand up straight, look down and if you can't easily see your toes then you are most probably overweight and even obese.

Put that glass of wine or beer down. Bin the huge slice of fat laden pizza or take-away and go for a walk. Break into a sweat and feel your heart most probably beating just a little too hard.

That's your warning call - carry on walking and tomorrow walk further. Name and address supplied

We need to be more active

NEW research has revealed that office workers need to do twice as much exercise as other adults to reduce their risk of premature death – and has recommended walking more (published in The Lancet medical journal, reported July 28).

Environmental pressures, such as desk jobs, make healthy choices difficult. However, inactivity is making people unhealthy and unhappy; accounting for one in six deaths in the UK and costing the health service up to £10billion a year. One way or another, we need to introduce more activity into our lives – and walking is an easy way to do this.

We want to create a walking nation. Just a 20 minute walk a day can provide noticeable physical and mental health benefits, reducing the risk of heart disease, diabetes, certain cancers, stroke and depression. Employers should ensure their staff feel able to go for walks and encourage them to do so. They will be rewarded with a happier and healthier workforce - bringing with it cost savings on sick pay, and employees who return from a walk feeling refreshed and motivated.

Dogs need to be kept on lead

THOUGHT I'd take my dog on a nice walk round both Motts Field and East Town Park.

My dog doesn't care too much for other dogs in his space and proudly displays a lead cover to indicate this. I'm feeling safe in the park as there are signs—albeit rather scrappy temporary signs—saying dogs must be on leads on the tarmac paths—all sounds good to me until I cross the Pooh Sticks bridge and my dog and myself are accosted by a Staffie off

I draw everyone's attention to the fact that it is the law that owners must be responsible for their dogs in a public space. The dog's owners were nowhere to be seen until they heard the dog fight that was kicking off between their dog and mine. Now, I'm nearly 70 and I end on the floor in stinging nettles just keeping my dog safe. I can assure you this wasn't the walk I had planned.

The owners were very apologetic and said their dog is usually very friendly to other dogs and I'm sure he is – but my dog isn't – as I mentioned before. Hence he is always on a lead

After recovering to some extent

– I'm sure the nettle rash will go and the sprain to my wrist will heal - I wander back to my car via Motts Field only to have my dog accosted by a GSD! Really not our day is it?

This dog was off lead in a public place with children playing on the swings etc. Once again I'm told 'he's friendly' – by this time I'm not! The rest you can only guess and I observed the other dog owners on the field at the same time all pulled their dogs close to them. How much longer do we have to put up with what should be an enjoyable afternoon out with our dogs being ruined by people who have no intention of obeying the law and will the council also ensure there is adequate signage all round the East Town Park to indicate where dog owners should have their dogs on a

I hope and pray that a dog running amok away from its owner never sees a child as something to go for. But I feel it's only time before this bridge.

Mr Whiter, who had been wearing a high-visibility jacket, had to have both his legs amputated from below the knee after he was pinned against his car during the crash and Mr Abbs sustained serious injuries to his left leg.

Neil Whiteley, of Camsolicitors Irwin bridge Mitchell, acting for Mr Abbs, said: "The guilty plea . . . has at least spared Joey reliving the experience through a trial, which would have been a very difficult time for him and his family. Obviously he now awaits the sentencing before he can begin to put this process behind him.'

More than 2,000 people have donated money to a cash campaign to help Mr Whiter, with the total raised coming to more than £80,000.

There will be also a daylong fund-raising event planned for the Cambs Glass Stadium on October 9.

Cambridge United's chief executive Jez George said: "As we have already said, this is a fantastic opportunity for people from the local football family and the wider local community to come together for these two local players.

Tickets cost £10 for adults. and £5 for under-18s, and can be bought online at www.cufcdirect.com, or at the club's ticket office.

New home for residents who need support

HANNAH MIRSKY

@HannahMirskyCN

A NEW multiple-occupancy house for people with mental health-related problems is opening in Haverhill.

The house, in Crowland Road, is the third property in the town to be bought by the Cambridge Pringle Group (CPG).

The group was formed in 1993 to improve services for people who suffer from schizophrenia.

Since then it has expanded to become a specialist housing provider for young adults at risk, people with autism and learning difficulties and young women escaping violence, as well as people with mental illnesses

Warning over swimming after drinking

HANNAH MIRSKY 9 @HannahMirskyCN

POLICE are warning young people not to go swimming in unsafe outdoor spots – particularly after drinking alcohol.

Haverhill police have received numerous reports of young people swimming in the new pond on Haverhill Research Park and at the Stour Brook gauging station in Sturmer.

PSCO Les Scott said that at the Sturmer gauging station, where there are signs up saying "no swimming", youngsters have been using a chute designed to measure water flow as a slide.

He said: "They don't put those signs up for no reason – we don't know what's in the river. It's just up from the sewage plant."

He said that at this location residents had reported young people drinking alcohol while they went swimming – increasing the likelihood of an accident.

We really are concerned about the safety of individuals," PSCO Scott said. "Parents need to know where young people are. They certainly should not be allowing them to swim in rivers and ponds."

He said that both Suffolk and Essex police were aware of the incidents, as Sturmer is over the Essex border.

He estimated that the incidents have been going on for the last month, due to hot weather, with groups of up to eight young people meeting at either spot.

PCSO Scott said: "We need to get the message out to young people that swimming in ponds, rivers and lakes in the area really is

In 2014 Cambridgeshire schoolboy Rony John drowned after going swimming in a river with his friends.

Development plans lead to concerns

COUNCILLORS have raised concerns about the level of parking available at two planned developments on a busy Haverhill street.

At a meeting of Haverhill Town Council's planning committee on Tuesday, two ap-plications for developments in the town's Camps Road were discussed.

Developers are proposing building 17 new homes on the site of the town's former magistrates court, and 50 retirement flats on an adjacent site.

Both developments would be very near Place Farm Primary School, and councillors say that the road is heavily congested at school run times.

Cllr Quillon Fox said: "It's bad enough down there at school times. It's absolute

The planning committee was considering a revised version of the application for re-tirement flats, as it had previously objected on the grounds of parking.

But the revised application added just two new places – bringing the total up to 18 spaces for 50 flats.

The application for 17 houses includes a total of 34 parking spaces.

Councillors said this was not enough as it meant that four-bedroom houses would not have the required three parking spaces. Cllr Jason Crooks said: "If 34 spaces are not enough for 17 developments, then 18 spaces are not enough for 50." It was pointed out that plan for the block of flats met the required number of parking spaces for care homes.

Both applications will now be considered by St Edmundsbury Borough Council.

How Glasswells came of age in 1990s

AS we continue to narrate the history of Glasswells, our focus now falls upon the 1990s.

Although by the early 90s the company had a total of 16,000 sq.ft. between St Andrews Street and Brentgovel Street branches, they realised this was no longer enough. The public were demanding bigger and better furniture displays, and more parking. A changing marketplace also saw more names appearing on the scene and Glasswells' market share falling.

In 1990 the management team took a long hard look at the situation and concluded it was time for a change. Substantial residential development in the borough convinced Leslie and Paul they needed to move to an edge-of-town location. They had the advantage of owning most of their own property, so the idea of becoming a tenant did not appeal.

In early 1992, Glasswells had the opportunity to acquire the 4.5-acre site and 34,000sq.ft. former Fiat buildings off Newmarket Road, with masses of space for further expansion. The purchase was completed by July, although development needed considerable thought as they planned to open within just ten weeks. Architect Ray Durrant was engaged and contracts placed with constructors W.J.Baker, who completed on time. The store was further extended in 1995.

"We succeeded in creating a large store where customers can see displays of furnishings as they might look at home," recollects Leslie. "We also added complementary departments and an in-store restaurant called The Place to Eat, which became integral to its success."

From a bespoke entrance carpet to specially textured ceilings, no stone was left unturned in providing customers with the ultimate shopping experience. However its continuing success combined with business generated by the newer Martlesham Heath 'World of Furniture' along with four further regional high street stores meant that by the late 90s the Tollgate Warehouse was bursting at the seams.

The decision was made to build a new £1.5m storage facility on a 4.5-acre site on Suffolk Business Park at Moreton Hall in Bury. The new 40,000sq.ft. warehouse would have scope for expansion and would replace the old Fornham Road warehouse which was built in 1956 and gradually extended until it reached its maximum 30.000sq.ft. capacity.

The new building enabled Glasswells to maintain higher stock levels, so cutting delivery times. Stock-handling became more efficient with the purpose-built facilities, and enabled the firm to further expand their removals department and offer greater storage facilities. The location also had the benefit of easy access to the A14 from where they could service the whole of the Anglia region.

Now in 2016, the currently 80.000sq.ft. Kempson Way warehouse is once again 'hub of operations'. The huge capacity means more stock can be ordered from manufacturers, with the resulting bigger discounts passed onto customers. And with a fleet of vans operating daily throughout the region, Glasswells offers express delivery on many more items.

It has also allowed the expansion of the removals department which now offers a nationwide and overseas service. Business and commercial warehousing is also available with companies of all sizes making use of the highly secure premises.

The story of a local institution continues.

Clean-up group to tackle brook

A GROUP has been set up to clear rubbish from a Haver-hill waterway.

Rivercare Haverhill is set to hold its first event on Saturday.

Residents who want to get involved are invited to meet at Lavender House in Haverhill's Withersfield Road at 9am to set off down the Stour Brook.

Group leader Dominick Thoburn said to event would be practical, with volunteers cleaning rubbish from the brook, but also educational.

He said those who attended would begin to learn what they could do to make the waterway a good habitat for local flora and fauna

He said: "Rivercare Haverhill is all about improving wildlife, helping wildlife. At the moment there's a lot in the actual river: motorcycle tyres, trolleys.

"All these products in the river do actually cause the wildlife to be harmed. It's just trying to keep people HANNAH MIRSKY

"It's just educating the local area of Haverhill basically – that's what Rivercare does."

Mr Thoburn said he contacted Rivercare after discovering the extent of the rubbish in the Stour Brook.

He said: "When we first moved in, me and my girlfriend did take a walk down the river. There were shopping trolleys, motorcycle tyres, a toilet."

He decided to take matters into his own hands and over the last four months has set up a branch of Rivercare in Haverhill.

Mr Thoburn said that the meeting on Saturday would be the first of an ongoing series held every two months.

He hoped it would give residents ideas about what they could do to improve the brook. This could including planting trees and bushes or removing foliage to allow more light to reach the waterway.

Mr Thoburn has also contacted a local school, which will be having regular sessions with him to teach its pupils how to care for the brook.

To get involved, turn up on Saturday or go to Facebook and search "Rivercare Haverhill" to access the online group.

Fire crews train up in medic trial

HANNAH MIRSKY

LIVES could be saved in Haverhill by firefighters being trained to attend medical emergencies.

The fire station is one of just five across Suffolk chosen to participate in a national trial scheme, which aims to get help to people suffering a heart attack as quickly as pos-

From September, if someone suffers a cardiac arrest in the Haverhill area, the ambulance service will call the fire and rescue service and, if available, a fire crew will be sent to the emergency.

A fire engine may be able to attend more quickly than an ambulance.

Firefighters can then administer life-saving support until an ambulance and paramedic arrive

The ambulance service will continue to send its staff to all cardiac arrests during the trial - but the help given a few minutes earlier could save lives

Suffolk county councillor Matthew Hicks said: "This initiative will ensure that people in Suffolk, whose lives are in danger, get help and assistance as quickly as is possible. I am really pleased to see Suffolk's firefighters and ambulance crews working closely together like this to help and support our communities."

Firefighters are currently receiving training from the ambulance service on skills such as resuscitation, infection prevention and safeguarding.

The firefighters are also being taught about incident reporting, access to medical information and how to use the equipment provided.

The fire service already owns some resuscitation equipment, which it uses at the scene of fires and road accidents. The ambulance service is set to provide further equipment such as grab bags and high-visibility vests. Suffolk's chief fire officer Mark Hardingham said: "Fire and rescue emergencies, of course, come first for firefighters. But our crews already have the skills and equipment needed to resuscitate people and they will do all they can, as part of this trial, to help improve a patient's chances of survival while an ambulance is on its way.

The trial is also being rolled out at Lowestoft South, Sudbury, Long Melford and Felixstowe.

The trial will be kept under close review until it ends in February.

Discussions are then set to take place to determine what to do next - which could include permanently rolling out the scheme nationally or regionally.

Vets raise cash for dog charities

A VETERINARY surgery has raised £300 for two dogrelated charities.

Homefield Road Veterinary Surgery in Haverhill raised the money by running a dog show at the tówn's annual Summer Bash in July.

Owner of the surgery, Richard Frost, has presented Judy Jesky, of Canine Partners, and Simon Edwards, of Guide Dogs for the Blind, with cheques for £150 each.

Judy has an assistance dog, Henry, which can do helpful things such as take her hat off and pick up the telephone.

Simon is registered blind and has a guide dog called Parsley who helps him get out and about.

Veterinary care assistant Gemma Harrison said: "We wanted to keep it dogrelated.

"Especially Canine Partners, it's a very unknown charity. We just want to get the word out there because it's such a great cause.

H. J. Paintin Ltd are proud to be completely family owned and family run and can truly say that they are independent. As the fifth generation of the Paintin family are now involved with the business they continue to help and care for people through one of the most difficult times of their lives.

They were founded over 100 years ago by Mr Augustus Did-Dell the great-grandfather of the present Managing Director Rothgar Did-Dell Paintin. Today Rothgar with his wife Susan, daughters Sarah and Rachel, son Matthew, son-in-law Gavin and daughterin-law Danielle continue to provide an invaluable role in the local community. They are well respected and are long established members of The National Association of Funeral Directors.

Rothgar Paintin arranges and conducts many of the funeral services and is often specially requested to help families that he has looked after before. Both his daughters Sarah and Rachel arrange and conduct funeral services and many families take comfort in having a female funeral director.

Meanwhile his son Matthew is also very involved and furnishes the coffins to families' requirements, drives the hearse, and helps to organise the daily work schedules.

Throughout the years the company has maintained its tradition of providing a very personal and high standard of service to families at their time of bereavement. They are supported by loyal and experienced members of staff, many of whom have been with the company for a number of years and have extensive local knowledge of churches, cemeteries and hospitals.

H. J. Paintin takes care of all the details of planning a funeral and will guide you through the day and are also very experienced in dealing with different faiths and cultures. The Funeral Directors traditionally walk in front of the hearse for a short distance and can include a special route for the journey if requested. They strive to ensure that families are able to carry out their loved one's last wishes with dignity and respect.

They have modern fleets of hearses and limousines which are air conditioned for comfort and have a classic range including Daimlers, Austin Sheerlines and Austin Princesses, some of which have been restored and can be available upon request for local services.

Traditional Funerals can take place in a Church, Crematorium or Cemetery Chapel and can be led by a member of the local Clergy if wished. However families can choose to have a non-religious funeral known as a Humanist Ceremony or Civil Ceremony which is a dignified celebration of life and can include religious content if requested.

Woodland and Green Funerals have also become an increasingly popular alternative. H. J. Paintin have their own wooden cart as shown which can be used at Woodland Burial Grounds to convey the coffin to the graveside.

The company offers a complete and comprehensive service 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. When you entrust H. J. Paintin Ltd with the care of your loved one, you can be sure that you will receive a heritage of compassion based on a wealth of experience.

Their Head Office is in Linton, where the company was founded, with further branches in Haverhill and Sawston.

There are Chapels of Rest at all premises where families can visit their loved ones.

PLEASED: The Pim:Jam team who raised money for Suffolk Accident Rescue Service (SARS)

Festival in memory of musician raises £2,500

HANNAH MIRSKY

A FESTIVAL held in memory of a Haverhill musician who died in a car crash has raised more than £2,500 for a charity that helped him.

Pim:Jam was held on Saturday,

July 30, in memory of Peter James, who died aged 26 in December 2013.

The festival raised money for the Suffolk Accident Rescue Service (SARS), which sends volunteer doctors to emergencies, including Mr James' crash.

This summer's Pim:Jam at the Bull pub in Haverhill's Camps Road, raised a total of £2,572.51. with 350 people buying tickets.

There were 17 different musical acts and performances running from 12.30pm until 10pm, fol-lowed by a DJ who played until the early hours of the morning. There was a raffle, refreshments and a merchandise stand.

Organiser Matt Plumb said: "We have already had great feedback from people attending as well as all the acts. Before we had even managed to pack all the equip-ment away we had lots of people asking when the next Pim:Jam will

This was the second Pim:Jam, with the first held in 2014. The organisers hope to expand the event.

Why Roy's at the top of

Mark Taylor meets a Paralympic star with a bright

HE art of dribbling in football has transfixed sports fans for generations. Sir Stanley Matthews, George Best, Diego Maradona, Ryan Giggs and most recently Lionel Messi have mesmerised even the most casual of observers as they create magic with the ball at their feet.

When the very best get in full flow they have the capacity to almost float towards and past opponents, leaving them rooted to the turf as a consequence of the spell they have just cast.

It is a finesse that can have a hypnotic charm – the brilliance of which almost seems to come from a tactile relationship with the hall

In its very essence it is a natural connection, a feel and instinct that is honed, and it is a skill that has been mastered by Roy Turnham.

He has the glide and weave and two-footed control at enthralling speed down to a fine

Examples of his ability can be found on his Twitter feed -@RoyTurnhamMusic - or by searching his name in Google and hitting the video button.

But do not let his Twitter handle mislead you, for while Roy may be a talented musician – a suggestion which is met by the response "how do you know, you haven't heard me play" – he is also a member of the England blind football team.

And in those internet clips Roy, who was born blind with a genetic condition inherited from his mother, demonstrates the same skills as some of the more illustrious aforementioned players.

"The main thing with us is because we have so much else to focus on, actually when I'm dribbling a football, when I've got it close to my feet, I'm not listening for where the ball is, I'm only listening for the ball when it's not in my possession," said Roy.

"I'm relying on my touch, so the important thing is to get lots of little touches so that vou're always in contact and always knowing where the ball is.

"If somebody closes you down very quickly, you're in a good enough position to be able to manipulate that ball into the space because it's close to your feet.

"The best players in the world do that, they keep the ball very close. It's really quick feet, really quick movement.

"In training, quite often, I will get a standard football with no sound in (footballs in blind football have ball bearings in casings inside) and dribble with it, and I can dribble it comfortably. Obviously, if it goes out of my possession and rolls away I can't find it!

"But if I keep it close at my feet I can do all the same things that I would do with a ball with a sound in it because I'm training to use my hearing to focus on everything else

that's going on around me. Roy is a quietly-spoken Liverpudlian who moved to Cambridge last year after his girlfriend took up a job with Public Health England. When we met, he had just finished a tennis session with Vision4Growth at Hills Road Sports Centre, a further sign of the sporting skill-set of the 31-year-old. You see, Roy may now be representing

"Fortunately for me, I've never had my with a sound in it, or whatever ball sport, I was able to participate with everybody else.

"My parents were always very keen to make sure that nobody would be putting unnecessary barriers in my way. I've been very, very fortunate."

Roy also uses the phrase "lucky enough to have the choice" when it comes to choosing his sport, but choice is about ability, not

During his younger years, he was on a development contract with UK Athletics as a middle-distance and cross-country runner. He took part at junior international level, but was forced to reconsider his sporting options as the Beijing Paralympics approached, when he was 21. After continuously breaking down in training, he was diagnosed to have fallen arches in his feet - hypermobility - and required surgery, but after being funded for surgery and rehab, his contract was terminated.

Roy sought to enjoy playing sport again, and it was around the same time that a national blind football league had been set up, so he started training with Everton and fell back in love with football.

During his first season at Everton, Roy got word that the England coaches were interested in him and he got invited to training camps as the selectors were putting together a provisional squad for the 2012 Paralympics.

He went on to represent Team GB in the five-a-side football at the London Paralympics, although by that time he had joined Leicester as Everton were no longer able to fund a team in the league.

But with only eight teams taking part in the Paralympics in Rio this year, GB were unable to make it through the difficult qualification process.

It was while training with England that Roy put the finishing touches to his game, with expert coaching needed, especially for game-specific details.

And among the key attributes required for blind football is communication.

The goalkeepers are fully sighted, but cannot leave their 5m by 2m area, and they are only allowed to talk to players in the defensive third of the pitch.

A coach on the side of the pitch is allowed to give information to players in the middle third of the pitch, and then there is a guide behind the opposition's goal, who is allowed to provide communication in the attacking third of the pitch.
"So the way the communication works is structured, and that stops too much of an overlap because if you've got too many voices shouting at once it just becomes chaos," said Roy.

Spatial awareness is also crucial, and the boards down each side of the pitch give an echo location so players can judge where they are by sensing those solid boards.

And asked whether general football can learn lessons from the skills required in visually impaired football, Roy certainly

"Hopefully, one day I'll have children of my own, and whether they were blind or sighted,

his game

I would be encouraging them to play futsal as children, if they were interested in playing football," said Roy.

"You know when you see the Brazilians and Spanish players who have this fantastic technique and the ability to operate in such tight spaces, they play a lot of futsal when they are growing up but they also transfer those techniques that they learn from playing the small-sided game into their 11-a-side play as well.
"It's starting to become more popular now, futsal, but when I was growing up I hadn't really heard of it.

"I've done blind football workshops with sighted people and I always say I hope that if you're footballers yourself then there might be some things that you learn through doing this that you can apply to your own football. "And communication is definitely one of those key points. They say it's something that they don't always think about." Having talked all things sport with Roy, it was time to turn the conversation back to that Twitter handle, and music.

"Before I got involved in athletics, music was definitely my first priority, it was my first love," he said. "I didn't realise that I was any good at sport, I just did it purely for

He played clarinet and was in the Liverpool Youth Orchestra, and spent his teenage years playing drums in bands and

And since moving to Cambridge, Roy has joined a blues band in which he plays drums and sings

"We rehearse fairly regularly," he added. "It's great to have that hobby that I just purely do for enjoyment."

On that note, with Pudsey his guide dog just starting to snore during a long sleep, it was almost time to wrap up the interview.

Maybe Pudsey was grateful for the muchdeserved break, as Roy seems to have a hectic diary.

Having been centrally contracted and fulltime with England for more than two-and-ahalf years, he has also set up a multi-sport club in Liverpool.

And he is a 'Sportivator' for the Sport for Schools scheme, which is aimed at GB athletes running fitness circuits and inspiring youngsters, and on his profile page they aren't big enough'.
So it seems fitting to ask Roy where his drive and inspiration comes from?

"One of the things that has really helped me is that my access to sport was never limited," he said.

"Everything I chose to do, I was never denied the opportunity to do it.

'My parents don't mind what I do, as long as I'm busy.

"It's not the disability that makes you disabled, it's the people around you if they don't give you the support.

"If you never have that 'you can't do this because you're blind', you bring in the rules that make things accessible for you."

He added: "It's accepting the things you can't do and then making the most of the things you can.

- Haverhill & District Flower Club's annual Floral Art Competition, always a favourite, blooms on Friday from 1.30pm to 5pm and Saturday
- from 9.30am to 4.30pm. Be inspired!

  Hannah Horton returns to the arts centre for the 10th Birthday Year of Summer Music Fun, a three-day course for young musicians aged 9 – 18, grade 2 – diploma from Monday, August 15, to Wednesday, August 17. This intense course from 10am to 4.30pm enables young people to enjoy making music together and aims to produce a high level of performance through a relaxed, yet working atmosphere. Staff at the arts centre can vouch for this; the difference from day one to three is amazing to hear!
- Join the arts centre for an afternoon of fun and mayhem in the form of Silly Philly's House of Fun on Thursday, August 18, at 2.30pm Phil. one of the stars of the 2015 pantomime, Cinderella, returns to the venue with his fun-packed show for the whole family. Phil Hoyles (without the wigs and make-up as one of the Ugly Sisters) presents a show full of comedy magic, games, competitions and dances. Be prepared for some audience participation, a special guest and an appearance from Benji the (real) white bunny. The show is suitable for ages 3 to 103!
- On the cinema front Learning to Drive (15) starring Patricia Clark son and Ben Kingsley is showing on Thursday, August 18, at 7.30pm and Monday, September 5, at 1.30pm. A literary agent whose husband has left her and a Sikh driving instructor on the verge of an arranged marriage find that each has something to learn from the other about starting life anew. What better way to mark this year's Roald Dahl centenary than with a brand new big friendly giant? The BFG (PG) 2D sees Sophie befriending the giant and they both set off on an adventure to capture the evil, man-eating giants who have been invading the human world. Directed by Steven Spielberg, with the voices of Mark Rylance, Rebecca

Smart adds Brabus option

THE latest updates to the Smart city car range have been announced, with a new Brabus Sport trim line being added to both the ForTwo and ForFour models.

The entry-level Passion trim level for the ForTwo Coupe now includes a fabric-covered roof, while the ForFour in Night Sky Prime and Prime Sport trims features a fabric electric opening

Across the range, Passion models receive features such as automatic climate control, 15-inch alloy wheels and a Smart audio system as standard.

Cars in Prime trim gain standard equipment such as heated front seats. leather upholstery and black 15-inch alloys, while Prime Sport cars gain sports suspension, a chrome exhaust finisher and larger 16-inch alloys.

Prices for the entry-level ForTwo Coupe in Passion trim start at £11,125, while the ForTwo Coupe in Brabus Sport will cost from £13,810.

Buyers 'turning backs on diesel'

AR buyers are turning their backs on diesel powered cars → in favour of petrol models according to new research by Whatcar.com.

The changing mood among buyers is reflected in the latest What Car? Intelligence survey results, which indicate that more than seven in 10 would be likely or very likely to choose a petrol car, compared with the four in 10 who would consider buying a diesel.

With engine performance and good fuel consumption being rated as the two most important factors for car buyers, the shift from diesel to petrol is more about running costs than concerns about the environment, following the diesel emissions scandal last year.

In recent years, diesel car sales have matched or exceeded petrol sales; in 2014 and 2015, diesel models represented 50.1 per cent and 48.5 per cent market share respectively.

More than 84 per cent of

RESEARCHING OPTIONS: Diesel sales have suffered as owners fret about possible future legislation car buyers surveyed are also worried about possible legislation changes that may affect the cost of ownership of diesel cars in the future, such as the retail price, fuel duty and vehicle road tax

The research also shows hybrids and electric cars are even less tempting for prospective car buyers, with between 12 per cent and 32 per cent of buyers considering diesel or petrol hýbrid vehicles; more than 48 per cent of buyers would be very unlikely to consider an electric car, backing up the fact buyers are less concerned about being green.

What Car? editor, Steve Huntingford, said: "There appears to have been a dramatic shift in the petrol and diesel sales seesaw. In the 2000s, legislation changes resulted in a diesel boom but after last year's revelations and the emergence of extremely efficient downsized petrol engines, the tide has now turned.

Buyers appear not to be overly concerned about environmental factors. Car buying is usually determined by the financial aspects of the purchase; if buyers fear a diesel crackdown and petrol engines are cheaper to buy while being almost as efficient, it's easy to understand the changes taking

Hyundai puts new i20 Turbo Edition in the spotlight

HYUNDAI has revealed pricing and specification details for its new i20 Turbo Edition. Designed, engineered and built in Europe, the i20 Turbo Edition will be priced from £12,975 when it enters showrooms this August.

Meeting the growing trend for small capacity turbo petrol engines, the special edition i20 Turbo features Hyundai's entertaining yet efficient 100PS 1.0-litre turbocharged 3 cylinder petrol engine with CO2 emissions just 104 g/km. Fitted with distinctive 16-inch alloy wheels, the special edition model will be available in a choice of six exterior colours: Polar White, Aqua Sparkling, Sleek Silver, Stardust Grey, Phantom Black and Red Passion, all with a sophisticated Black/Grey interior.

Based on the well-specified i20 SE, the sporty new i20 Turbo Edition offers Bluetooth, DAB digital radio, cruise control with speed limiter, and a leather wrapped steering wheel with audio and phone controls as standard. The special edition builds on the SE model's specification, adding a rear view camera, automatic lights with dusk sensor, and satellite navigation via a seven-inch integrated touch screen.

With the satellite navigation upgrade, Turbo Edition owners receive a free seven-year TomTom Live Services subscription, which provides the most up to date traffic information, speed camera alerts, weather updates, and live Point Of Interest notifications.

Electric car sales are up 38% year-on-year

CONVERTED: Three Caddy variants

Wheelchair-friendly Volkswagen Caddy

VOLKSWAGEN Commercial Vehicles, in partnership with Sirus Automotive, the UK's leading provider of 'drive-from' wheelchair and wheelchair passenger Up-Front vehicles, has launched the very first wheelchair conversion of its petrol-powered Caddv.

The unique offer has been developed using the brand's latest generation Caddy model, providing customers who are looking for a more realistic 'car driving' experience the option to select a petrol model for the very first time. Sirus offers three Caddy variants: the Caddy Transfer, Caddy Drive and Caddy Up-Front, all offering a superior experience for wheelchair users, whether they are a passenger or driver.

The converted Volkswagen Caddy Up-Front, available from £26,195, can accommodate most power and manual chairs allowing the passenger to travel next to the driver in complete comfort.

OTORISTS in the UK are buying more electric vehicles than ever; with latest figures confirming continual quarterly rises in plug-in car uptake. Since records began in 2011, volumes of electric car registrations have risen steeply as motorists realise the benefits of

and a fun driving experience.
In the April-June period of this year, 38.0 per cent more electric cars were registered compared to the same timeframe in 2015, building on a 27.4 per cent pick-up in the first quarter. In addition to these quarterly gains, the first six months of this year pushed electric car registrations 31.8

owning an electric vehicle, which include low running costs, tax savings per cent ahead of the first half of 2015. Plug-in registrations totalled 19,252 for the year-to-date, 4,640 units ahead of the same period last year

The bumper start to 2016 pushes registration volumes close to 70,000 units since government introduced its Plug-in Car Grant in January 2011.

Transport Minister John Hayes said: "I am delighted to see record numbers of motorists coming round to the benefits of cleaner, greener vehicles, which are also cheaper to run. The low-emission sector supports over 18,000 UK jobs and is a key pillar in our ambition for a low carbon, high tech and high skills economy. We want to make the UK a world leader in electric vehicle uptake and manufacture, to ensure that by 2050 every car and van on our roads is a zero emission vehicle. We are backing this with one of the most comprehensive support packages in the world, with more than £600m of government investment to help grow the UK market."

Poppy Welch, head of Go Ultra Low, said: "The continued growth in uptake of electric cars speaks for itself as registration records continue to be broken by motorists encouraged by the benefits electric motoring can bring. As awareness grows and motorists see the wide variety of vehicles already on UK roads coupled with benefits such as running costs from as little as 2p per mile, more drivers than ever are becoming motivated to go green. Since the introduction of the Plug-In Car Grant was introduced in 2011 the variety of electric models has expanded significantly, notably so in the past two years, giving motorists more choice than ever before."

Of the vehicles that have made up these continually-improving figures for the first half of the year, the Mitsubishi Outlander PHEV has proved most popular with 5,738 of the plug-in SUV rolling on to UK roads

The Nissan LEAF remains the most popular pure-electric car with 2,336 first-half registrations in 2016.

Ford boosts Kuga range with sporty ST-Line option

FORD has announced a new Kuga ST-Line version of the popular mid-size sports utility vehicle (SUV) on sale later this year, offering sporty styling inspired by Ford Performance models, alongside powerful and efficient EcoBoost petrol and TDCi diesel engines as well as sports-tuned driving dynamics.

The new Kuga ST-Line will feature among Ford's expanded SUV range and the most comprehensive Kuga line-up ever, including the sophisticated new Kuga and the upscale Ford Kuga Vignale, as well as the compact EcoSport and large all-new Edge.

New Kuga prices will start from £20,845 and Kuga ST-Line prices from £25,845 for delivery by the end of this year.

Kuga ST-Line delivers bold exterior and interior styling including unique alloy wheels and sport seat designs; powertrains including Ford's 182PS 1.5-litre EcoBoost petrol with Ford Intelligent All

KUGA ST-LINE: From £25,845 for delivery this year

Wheel Drive (AWD); and a sports chassis with specially tuned suspension and steering.

"With our sporty Kuga ST-Line joining the new Kuga and our upscale Ford Kuga Vignale, Ford will offer a Kuga for every lifestyle," said Roelant de Waard, vice president, marketing, sales and service, Ford of Europe. "We predict sales of 200,000 Ford Kuga, EcoSport and Edge SUVs in Europe this year – up by 200 per cent from 2013."

The percentage of SUVs sold in Europe compared with total car sales has grown from six per cent in 2005 to 23 per cent in 2015. This is expected to increase to 27 per cent by 2020, according to industry sales analyst IHS, fuelled by growing popularity with an unusually diverse group of buyers, according to a recent Ford survey.

Nearly one in three "Modern Mums", mothers with young kids, are considering an SUV for their next car, as are one in four Millennials (17- to 34-years-olds); and one in five "Quintastics" (active and youthful buyers in their fifties), according to the Ford-sponsored survey of 5,000 people in the UK, France, Germany, Italy and Spain who own a car or who intend to buy one in the next 12 months.

Registered Nurses BAND 6

(34 weeks/term time only)

Following the retirement of our Senior Nurse, after 32 years of service the Leys School is recruiting registered nurses to join our Medical Centre. This is an exciting time as we modernise and develop the School's Nursing Service. We require committed, motivated and flexible applicants who enjoy working with young people. Part/full time hours available.

The main areas of responsibility include minor illness and injury work, chronic illness management, health promotion, immunisations and trip planning. School nursing, general practice or A/E experience would be advantageous. Good communication, organisational and IT skills are essential.

Pro-rata salary is based on point 6, band 22 of the NHS salary bands including overnight allowances, pro-rata 33 days paid holiday (inclusive of 8 bank holidays) / free meals whilst on duty term time / contributory pension scheme / use of the Leys Leisure facilities / on-site parking / NMC fees are paid for by the School. This role is fixed-term for one year with the possibility of permanent positions going forward.

For further details please e-mail hr@theleys.net or telephone 508900. Applications should be submitted to The HR Department at The Leys School by noon on Monday 8th August.

The Leys School is committed to safeguarding and promoting the welfare of children. An enhanced DBS check and workplace references will be required; probationary period will also apply. Evidence of eligibility to work in the UK required as applicable. Charity no: 1144035.

PHARMACY MANAGER

We are looking for a qualified and experienced Pharmacy Manager who is looking for the challenge of delivering a comprehensive hospital pharmacy service at Spire Cambridge Lea Hospital. You will be responsible for leading and motivating the pharmacy team by providing excellent clinical and managerial leadership. To provide advice and support to consultants, other clinicians and patients ensuring the safe, appropriate and cost effective use of medicines. To advise the hospital and its departments on the safe management of medicines, ensuring compliance with current legislation and professional standards.

All our clinical teams are focused on delivering personalised care, and our Pharmacists play a key role in treating patients with empathy and compassion. One of the things our Pharmacists enjoy most about working at Spire is the feeling of being in a team with the wider hospital. Our hospitals are relatively small, enabling you to build strong working relationships with colleagues and consultants and to work together to improve patient outcomes.

We offer free parking for staff on site. We offer employees a contributory pension scheme, life assurance, free private medical Insurance, wellness screening and a motivating workplace environment

BELT UP: Chalkstone Karate Club members show off their new belts

Chalkstone trio in the black after grading

A TRIO of Chalkstone Karate Club members have claimed black belts following a successful grading.

The Haverhill club's Kevin Archer, Ryan Crowe and James Martinez had to demonstrate hundreds of techniques, perform sequences of moves, known as kata, and fight during the gruelling exam at Braintree before passing their tests. Meanwhile, other Chalkstone students also made the grade to move up to next belt level.

They included Evie Sutherland,

Jessica Atkins (both red belt), Cody Turner, Edie Clark (both green belt), Ethan Bolton, Joshua Matenga, Amber Carr, Millie Hardy, Joshua Bryant, Jason Wale (purple belt), Finlay Bolton (blue belt, white stripe) and Jon Crowe (brown belt).

Gilbert leads team to victory

HAVERHILL Running Club's Michael Gilbert finished in second place at the penultimate race of the Kevin Henry series in Kedington, Haverhill.

Rain before the race meant conditions were tricky, but Gilbert did well to claim second spot, and with Matt Bigley finishing fifth, the men's team took first place overall.

Sian Marie Lucas was the club's first lady home and Siobhan Dockerill was Elsewhere, Peter Miller finished fifth at the Lake District Half-Marathon, with Sarah Miller and Steven Miller close behind.

In St Neots, Cherylin Lane, Frances Williams, Elllen Williams and Tony Bacon braved the heat to run the town's annual 10k event.

Rovers suffer FA Cup disappointment again

HAVERHILL Rovers fell at the first hurdle in the FA Cup for the fourth year running when they lost their extra preliminary round tie to Hertford Town 2-1.

And it was in controversial circumstances, as the South Midlands League team were awarded an 89th-minute penalty when Sam Holmes was harshly penalised for handball after a frantic passage of play in the Rovers penalty area.

Tyler Hatherley converted the spot kick to win the game for Hertford.

The first half had been a goalless affair, but it was Hertford who took the lead in the 67th minute, Tommy Wade netting from close range. The lead lasted just two minutes though, as Ben Bradley and Luke Latham combined to set up substitute Rory Jebb who fired home to make it

Danny Hill almost put Rovers in front with 15 minutes to go, but it was Hertford who progressed to the next round thanks to the late penalty

In the Thurlow Nunn League, First

Division, Haverhill Borough held off a fightback from hosts March Town to claim a 3-2 win, with Craig Pruden netting a first-half hat-trick.

Pruden put Boro in front in the first minute, and although March equalised shortly afterwards, he netted again to restore Borough's lead midway through the first half.

Pruden completed his treble on the stroke of half time to make it 3-1, and although March pulled a goal back early in the second half, Borough held on for all three points.

On Saturday, Borough had to settle for a point after drawing 1-1 away

Pruden put them in front with 20 minutes remaining, but, after some opportunities went begging to extend the lead, the visitors equalised with a header from a corner.

Player-manager Martin Westcott was initially disappointed not to come away with all three points but was ultimately pleased to take something from the game.

He said: "We had quite a few changes in the summer, so to go away to Diss, who finished above us last season, wasn't a bad result, even though it felt a bit like a defeat at the time.
